

Icky Inchworm

Icky Inchworm lived in an apple tree. Icky was sad because he wanted to see the world, but all he could see were the branches and leaves of the tree. He looked this way and that way, but the leaves on the tree were too thick to see through. Icky decided to climb to the very top of the tree. Surely from the top of the tree he'd be able to see the world.

Icky started to climb up the apple tree. His legs were very short so he couldn't climb very fast. He got really hungry, so he'd have to stop and eat. But he kept climbing. Day after day, Icky inched toward the top of the tree. If he didn't have to stop and eat, he would have gotten to the top more quickly, but he was so hungry that he had to eat a lot. He didn't give up. All through the spring and all through the summer, Icky climbed up the tree. When fall came, Icky made it to the very top of the apple tree!

Icky Inchworm was excited because for the first time in his life he could see the world. He could see in every direction without any leaves to block his view. Icky was happy. He could see the world.
